

Arsenic And Old Lace' Opens Wednesday

Kennedy On de Jong Stage . .

By Gary Wood
Managing Editor

Unhappily mixture of "Arsenic And Old Lace" becomes Wednesday as the well-known comedy of Joseph Kesselring opens the stage of the Concert Hall in the Harris Bldg. for a four-day run.

Performances begin at 8:15 p.m. and tickets are available at the ticket office on the main floor of the Fine Arts Bldg. Students will be issued one ticket per activity card, while guests will be charged $1.50.

Dr. Charles E. Metten directs the BYU Dramatic Arts Dept. version of the modern American farce about two spinster sisters whose idea of charity is to relieve old men of their misery with poisoned elderberry wine.

Zola E. Carter and Mary Pederson will enact the roles of the demented sisters, while David R. Phillips plays Teddy, a nephew who imagines himself as Teddy Roosevelt and disposes of bodies in the Panama Canal he's digging in the cellar.

Two of the more sane characters—Mortimer, another nephew, and Elaine—are played by Ronald Dalley and Carol Babcock.

GETS AROUND

Jonathan, a third nephew who's wanted for murder in every port, is portrayed by David Larsen.

Others in the cast include Jay Baumgardner, Paul Oe, Robert Harrison, Larry Jardine, Russ Jensen, Jack Meyerhoffer, Frank Spragg and Roy Welby.

"This play is one of the most popular and hilarious written in the American theatre," remarked Metten. "It has tremendous appeal for all ages and makes for wonderful summer family entertainment."

ZANY PLAY

Kesselring's comedy has "a zany script that really makes it funny and entertaining," Metten continued. "It's one of the greatest American farces in modern times."

Technical director is Robert Struthers, set designed by Dr. Karl Pope, costumes by Keith Gibbons, props by Linda Hansen and lighting supervised by Jim Alexander.

Mavis Gashler is assistant to the director.

RICHARD BALLOU

BYU band director heads summer music camp.

Music Meet Features Y and Head

Richard Ballou, director of 48 BYU bands, will head a visit to the music camp at Purdue University, July 7-13.

Ballou, located in Lafayette, is known as one of the nation's band activity. He visited Ballou last week.

FOUR SECTIONS

The 48th annual summer music camp will be highlighted by four organizations—marching bands and elective bands in music and sports. 40 junior and senior high students from the Midwest are invited to attend.

Ballou will serve as director of the Camp Honors Band, which will conduct two concerts at the summer music camp. He re-

Lagoon Day This Friday

BYU's annual Lagoon Day will be held July 12 from 1 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.

Students, faculty, alumni and staff members are encouraged to participate in activities planned by the ASBYU Social Office.

According to Briant Summerhays, chairman of the Lagoon Day committee, there will be free swimming throughout the day at the huge Lagoon pool. Food will be served from 5 p.m. to 7:30 p.m.

Carnival rides, fun house activities, and old-fashioned movies in the new Opera House will also be available at Lagoon.

Transportation by bus will be provided to the resort north of Salt Lake City if private transportation is unavailable.

Last summer, over 5,000 people attended BYU's Lagoon Day.

BARREL OF FUN

BYU Summer School students frolicked in the Fun House and all of the other myriad of attractions at Lagoon Amusement Center last year. Swimming, food, and fun await the campus family Friday at the annual BYU Lagoon day, from 1 p.m. to 10:30 p.m.

New Authority Speaks

Elder Hartman Rector, Jr., who is presently a senior president of the 52nd Quorum of Seventy in the Potomac Stake will be the Devotional Assembly speaker today at 10 a.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall.

Elder Rector lives in Fairfax, Va. He is a convert to The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints of 1962 along with his wife whom he married in 1947. They are the parents of seven children.

NAVY OFFICER

He is a former naval aviator, presently holding the rank of captain in the U.S. Naval Reserve and for ten years has been with the U.S. Department of Agriculture where he is program and budget analyst in the office of Budget and Finance.

He was raised on a farm near Moberly, Mo., where he graduated from high school and junior college.

In 1942 he enlisted in the Naval Reserve cadet program, became a naval aviator and was commissioned in 1945 with the rank of Ensign.

He went on inactive duty in 1947 but was recalled in 1951 during the Korean War and saw action in Korea, remaining on active duty until April, 1958.

During his service in the navy he received additional education at Murray State Teachers College in Kentucky, the Makoto State Teachers College in Minnesota, the University of Georgia and the University of Southern California.

STAKE MISSION

He has served the Church in many positions since his baptism, including four years as a stake missionary during which time his converts numbered 47.

ELDER RECTOR

New Seventies President addresses Devotional today.

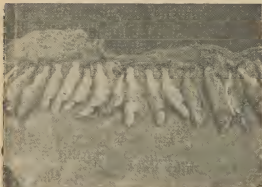

Forum Today

The initial Free Forum of the summer will take place at noon today on the West Patio of the Wilkinson Center.

Principal speaker will be Summer School Student Body President Paul Genbo, who will address students on "Violence in the United States."

Besides discussing student riots in particular, Genbo will speak briefly on the recent assassinations of John F. Kennedy, Martin Luther King, Jr., and Robert F. Kennedy. Genbo and the ASBYU Vice Presidents will answer questions on student government.

Summer Can Be Adventurous

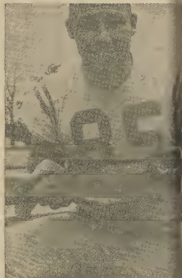

Almost ideal growing conditions make catches like this average for a day's fishing at nearby Strawberry Reservoir.

Summer at the Y is many things to many people. It is a chance to get in some much needed units—a chance to walk through the library or bookstore in relative solitude—or a chance to mix a lot of summer fun with the educational process.

Besides school and related activities, summer at the Y offers a wide variety of leisure pastimes only briefly available to students attending regular sessions. Nearby canyons offer a pleasant respite from the afternoon heat. Numerous lakes and streams offer boating, water skiing, fishing and swimming.

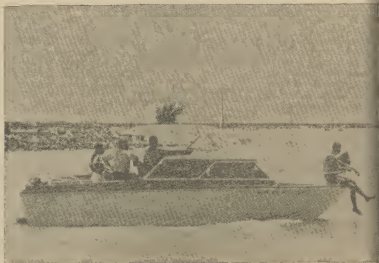

If you haven't already joined the people on this page in some pleasant and enjoyable activities—a few hours spent in discovering Utah might prove to be the highlight of your summer.

Even the Provo River produces its share of brook-size trout . . . as shown here by Steve Glenn.

And then there are those who enjoy fishing whether they catch anything or not.

If the fish aren't biting you can always join them for a cruise around the lake.

GRAD GIFT

... Dr. Harold Goodman, chairman of BYU Music Department, gratefully accepted an ancient violin from donor L. Roy Pathe, who attended the University some 50 years ago.

Y Graduate Donates Violin To University

A violin of ancient but unknown Piano-Performance to Dan Harvintage has been presented to Brigham Young University by a member of the BYU Emeritus Club (graduates of over 50 years).

L. Roy Pathe, 88, of Bakersfield, Calif., presented the instrument—now mounted in a frame—to Dr. Harold Goodman, chairman of the BYU Music Department. He said his father, who immigrated to United States from Germany in 1885, brought the violin with him.

VERY OLD

A slip of paper inside states the violin was repaired in Germany in 1885, and it is believed to be about 100 years older than that. Dr. Goodman said it has a good tone but needs use to bring out its full potential. The instrument has been played with the Royal Canadian Orchestra and once in concert by the Kern County, Calif., Philharmonic Orchestra concertmaster.

WENT TO BYU

Mr. Pathe, born in Spanish Fork, attended BYU 1905 to 1908 and worked as an accountant for Southern Pacific Railroad 1913 to 1922, Bank of America from 1922 to 1935, and the Navy Oil Company from 1935 to 1950, when he retired.

Active in music all of his life, he played drums and marimba-phones for 20 years with dance orchestras and in theaters and at age 75 took up the electric organ.

BYU Hosts Academies For Youths

A "dream vacation" with a lot of personal improvement thrown in is being realized for girls 10 to 18 years of age at three youth academies at BYU this summer.

About 250 girls will attend the sessions July 1-12 and July 15-21, according to Mrs. Katherine C. Taylor, director. The first group was here from June 17 to 28.

HIGH AIMS

"The aim will be to help each girl know herself and her relationship to the world she lives in," said Mrs. Taylor.

The packed program will include instruction in skills such as ceramics, cooking, sewing, music and dance; a heavy emphasis on charm, such as poise, personality, manners, makeup, hair care and musical exercises; guides to daily living in religion, patriotism and honor; and even preparedness in first aid and self protection.

ON CAMPUS

The girls will reside in campus residence halls and dine in campus cafeterias.

On the final day of each program, parents will be invited for a special farewell banquet.

'Survivors' Learn To Live Laws Of Nature

By Pam Stott
Special to the Universe

(Following is the first of a two-part article on a unique survival training course offered personally at BYU.)

After 26 days of living in a Utah desert on rattlesnake stew and baked lizard, 36-mile forced marches, and sleeping under trees or rocks, 26 "survivors" of a BYU survival course returned to campus recently with a deeper kinship to nature.

Enrolled in a class called Youth Leadership 499, the 16 men and 10 women became modern pioneers, leaving civilization behind to meet Mother Nature head-on.

CLASS PREPARATION
They had been prepared for the experience by lectures, class discussions, skill demonstrations and films, and on their return have continued with oral reports, discussions and written evaluations.

Under the direction of outdoorsman Larry Dean Olsen and his assistant, Doris Jackson, they set up base camp in the wilderness 13 miles beyond Blanding, Utah. Each carried only a sleeping bag, essential cooking equipment (a knife and a pot) and food packs for extended marches only.

The first week was spent in getting everyone into condition, hiking and climbing and orienting the novices to use the materials offered by the desert for wilderness existence.

During that first week, a new pattern of thinking began to evolve in the students' minds, Mr. Olsen said. It was a stripping-down process to simplify their lives and they soon began to see what was really necessary.

The girls, for instance, abandoned make-up; all learned that sand is just as effective as a towel for drying wet hands. Cooking, eating and getting situated for the coming day or night became such a drudgery that everyone began to see that he could only do what was most important.

LONG WALK

The second week featured a dramatic 36-mile hike from the base camp to Bluff, Utah. Blistered feet were common, as was exhaustion.

In fact, two boys collapsed, and while some of the men stayed behind to hold them when muscle spasms came, the others pushed on. Some reached Bluff in 12 hours on empty stomachs because they refused to stop for food or sleep.

During this week, the students learned that they could do more than they thought they were able to do; all they had to do was extend themselves a little farther. They learned, too, a concern for their fellows. Each was just as tired as his companions, yet there was always someone who needed to be helped in some way.

(NEXT—lizards, rattlesnake meat, and communication without words.)

HEARTY APPETITES

... Members of a BYU course in outdoor survival found that they had no difficulty building up an appetite. Kathy Aphel (top left), Karen Greebe and Tim Harman sample the ribs of a deer that had been killed by a cougar.

Indians Fight Malnutrition

Fourteen women, newly armed with tips on proper cooking and returned to their reservations a week to fight malnutrition among Indian children.

A part of the Head Start program, women from the Uintah reservation in Utah and the Muchleshoor, Chehalis, Skokomish, and Makah Reservations in Washington attended a week-long seminar conducted at BYU.

ALL COOKS All are cooks in child development centers and they spent the week preparing meals for children observing their reactions to particular dishes, and attending lectures on good nutritional habits.

"Studies have shown that hungry children cannot learn," said Mrs. Ottella Tyndall from the Bureau of Indian Services.

She explained that the program also seeks to educate families in the selection and preparation of food.

Project Head Start is designed to help children from deprived families fulfill their growth potentials; in addition to other health problems, children of the poor are often found to be inadequately nourished.

Apostle Secretary To Speak

The fireside will be held in the De Jong Concert Hall at 9 p.m. July 14.

According to Pete Peterson, chairman of the fireside, music will be furnished by the University Chorale, directed by Robert Downs. The Fifth Stake, under President Harold Goodman, is sponsoring the fireside.

Student Assistance Available At BYU Counseling Service

Students needing assistance in personal problems and vocational selection will find a willing friend in the BYU Counseling Service.

Counseling service is free to all students. It may be given in the form of individual counseling, group counseling or both.

A student sometimes finds himself in a position regarding vocational choice or personal problems in which communication with another person is needed in order to arrive at satisfactory decisions or solutions. This is when aid from the BYU counseling service is valuable.

COUNSELING CENTER

The Counseling Center is open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.; it is located in C273 Smoot Bldg.

Counselors may be seen by appointment or, in an emergency, immediately. An appointment may be made by calling ex. 2061 or by personal visit.

SKILLED PERSONNEL

It is essential that counselors be trained and skilled in working with students in the areas of vocational choice or personal problems of students.

For this reason the university supports a large counseling center staffed by well-qualified professional counselors and equipped with extensive informational and testing services.

REASONS VARY

Students make use of the Counseling Center for a variety of reasons of personal growth or for making decisions regarding career selection.

Specifically, the Counseling Service is prepared to help students in such areas as vocational guidance or choosing a major, dealing with academic problems, developing social and interpersonal skills and growing in greater self-understanding.

The Service is also qualified to aid in overcoming feelings of loneliness, resolving personal problems, or finding appropriate ways of solving conflicts.

TESTING SERVICES

As an integral part of the Counseling Center, the university provides both testing services and occupational information.

Tests of achievement, ability, interest, and adjustment are given to all students who request them through a counselor. Data from these tests are used as a basis for counseling in educational, occupational and personal problems.

GOOD LIBRARY

A comprehensive, current collection of essential occupational information is maintained in the Counseling Center library.

Current catalogues of the major universities and technical schools are also on file. These materials are available to all students seeking information about careers.
